

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

Hugh Hodgson School of Music Limited-term Lecturer in Piano

The Hugh Hodgson School of Music at the University of Georgia (UGA) seeks a limited-term lecturer, artist-teacher of piano to join a vibrant piano area with a strong national and international reputation. Primary duties include applied instruction to undergraduate and graduate piano majors; teaching of courses in piano literature, accompanying, and/or other areas aligned with candidate's expertise; coaching of chamber music; active participation in area activities and recruitment. This is a full-time (9 month), benefits-eligible, non-tenure track limited term appointment. Targeted start date: January 1, 2022.

Responsibilities

- Serve as an artist-teacher of piano.
- Teach applied piano lessons to students from undergraduate through doctoral levels and lead weekly studio class.
- Actively participate in student recruitment in and out of state.
- Teach piano-related courses as needed, including but not limited to piano literature and accompanying.
- Coach chamber music.
- Other duties as assigned.

Qualifications:

- A terminal degree in piano (such as a Doctor of Musical Arts). Candidates with a master's degree in piano will also be considered and must document exceptional accomplishments and professional experience (minimum two years). Candidates without a doctoral degree must be approved for a terminal degree exception before hire.
- Minimum one year of university teaching experience in piano, with ability to teach course work in piano literature, accompanying, and/or other areas of expertise.
- Demonstrated success in performance, with evidence of an emerging national reputation.
- Ability to work collaboratively and effectively with students and faculty.
- Demonstrated commitment to diversity, inclusion, and anti-racism.
- Ability to contribute to a dynamic, holistic music program that prepares students for a music career in the 21st century.
- Must be currently legally eligible to work in the United States.

To Apply

Applicants should include a curriculum vitae and cover letter describing their academic qualifications and professional experience, showing how they will add value to the program. The cover letter (maximum 3 pages) should highlight expertise in areas of potential class instruction. Also included in the cover letter should be information related to their teaching philosophy and how their teaching, service, and research/creative activity have supported the success of students from racial, ethnic, and gender backgrounds that are underrepresented in the field. Applicants who may not yet have had these experiences should explain how their work will further the College's commitment to diversity.

Application materials should also include links to an online portfolio/website highlighting artistic work, which must include at least 3 stylistically diverse, unedited live recordings from performances in the past three years; unofficial transcripts for highest degree earned; names and contact information for a minimum of three references.

Application documents must be uploaded to this UGAJobs link: <https://www.ugajobsearch.com/postings/227246> . To ensure full consideration, please apply by November 15, 2021. Questions about the application process can be directed at Edith Hollander (somadmin@uga.edu or 706-542-32701); questions about the position can be directed at Liza Stepanova at lstepan@uga.edu . Persons needing accommodations or assistance with the accessibility of materials related to this search are encouraged to contact Central HR (hrweb@uga.edu). Please do not contact the department or search committee with such requests.

The Hugh Hodgson School of Music (<https://music.uga.edu/>) is among the leading schools of music in the region and nationally. It includes comprehensive programs, with degrees at the undergraduate level through the masters and doctorate. A celebrated faculty, outstanding facilities, and talented students build a supportive and rich environment for artistic and scholarly growth. Graduates from our programs have been internationally successful in their chosen fields.

The Franklin College of Arts and Sciences, its many units, and the University of Georgia are committed to increasing the diversity of its faculty and students and sustaining a work and learning environment that is inclusive. Women, minorities and people with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

The University of Georgia (<https://www.uga.edu/>), a land-grant and sea-grant university with statewide commitments and responsibilities, is the state's oldest, most comprehensive, and most diversified institution of higher education (<https://www.uga.edu/>). UGA is currently ranked among the top 15 public universities in U.S. News & World Report. The University's main campus is located in Athens, approximately 65 miles northeast of Atlanta, with extended campuses in Atlanta, Griffin, Gwinnett, and Tifton. UGA was founded in 1785 by the Georgia General Assembly as the first state-chartered University in the country. UGA employs approximately 1,800 full-time instructional faculty and more than 7,700 full-time staff. The University's enrollment exceeds 39,000 students including over 30,000 undergraduates and over 9,000 graduate and professional students. Academic programs reside in 18 schools and colleges, as well as a medical partnership with Augusta University housed on the UGA Health Sciences Campus in Athens.

The University of Georgia is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, ethnicity, age, genetic information, disability, gender identity, sexual orientation, or protected veteran status.